As Chief Operating Officer and President of International Sales and Distribution for The Weinstein Company (TWC), David C. Glasser is responsible for the company's day-to-day management and the development of its growing portfolio of businesses, which include motion pictures, television, home entertainment, library, and international film sales and distribution.

He oversees all production/sales/finance deals for motion pictures originated with TWC and its genre division, Dimension Films. These include such recent releases as The King's Speech, winner of four Academy Awards®, and Scre4m, as well as upcoming releases I Don't Know How She Does It, My Week With Marilyn, and So Undercover.

Glasser oversees all acquisition deals, the most recent of which include The Bully Project, Undeclared, Our Idiot Brother, The Details, Submarine, Dirty Girl, The Company Men and the Academy Award®-nominated Blue Valentine. He played a key role in the domestic distribution of, and awards campaigns for, the Oscar®-winning films The King's Speech and Quentin Tarantino's Inglorious Basterds. Prior to joining The Weinstein Company, David Glasser served as Chief Creative Officer of Yari Film Group and President of Los Angeles-based Syndicate Films International, LLC, the foreign sales and production division of Yari Film Group.
